

QUALITY HEALTHCARE

What is the Permian Strategic Partnership?

The Permian Strategic Partnership (PSP) is an unprecedented coalition of 19 energy companies that have come together to address current and future challenges surrounding the responsible development of the vast oil and natural gas resources of the Permian Basin. The PSP is working in collaboration with elected officials, local leaders, community organizations and citizens from West Texas and Southeast New Mexico to develop solutions to strengthen local communities.

In 2018, the PSP completed an initial analysis and fact-gathering stage, including a survey of local residents, which identified the most urgent needs of the region.

Based on that analysis, PSP is focused on the following five areas:

Improved
schools

Safer
roads

Affordable housing

Quality
healthcare

Workforce development

Permian Basin by the Numbers

Expected impact by 2025

~50k
local new jobs

40% of U.S. domestic oil production will come from the Permian Basin, compared to 33% today

>$10B
in annual severance tax,
compared to

~$50B
yearly in oil field
capital
expenditure,

compared to ~$40B
today

~$2B
in 2016, a significant increase in state revenue for both Texas and New Mexico

Why Healthcare?

The PSP recognizes that quality healthcare in the Permian Basin faces a unique set of challenges, not only from the region's tremendous growth, but also because of the natural obstacles present in rural areas – one of the most pressing issues for residents of the area is accessibility to quality healthcare and healthcare professionals.

As the region's population continues to grow, so does the need for quality healthcare. The Permian Basin's growing needs can be met through several avenues, including social programs that encourage healthy lifestyles, improvements in technology and connectivity that bridge the gap between patients and doctors, and, most importantly, building commitments to healthcare students in the area.

programs to encourage healthy lifestyles

improvements in technology and connectivity

commitment to healthcare students

By providing high quality healthcare education and opportunities, the region can attract and retain healthcare professionals dedicated to their communities.

What We're Doing

The PSP Healthcare Committee is working to increase local access to quality healthcare for communities in the Permian Basin. By collaborating with local stakeholders and institutions like universities, regional hospitals, local foundations, and philanthropies, the PSP Healthcare Committee sees opportunities to train and retain more doctors in the region, expand utilization of emerging technologies and healthcare models, and advocate for programs that promote wellness throughout the region.

Questions?

For more information on the Permian Strategic Partnership and how we are working to support healthcare in the region, please contact:

Julia Kiewit

julia@permianpartnership.org